

LAW LIZ

Feature film

Genre: Coming of Age / Gender / Action

Based on a true story

SYNOPSIS

24-year old LISA is still not shure who she is and whether she likes girls more than boys. The only thing she's really sure of is that she doesn't fit in where she lives in ever so grey Germany. Being a total outsider has made her catrastrophically shy, and reclusive.

She decides to leave - at least for half a year, to see if things can be better for her somewhere else. Being a hardcore marihuana smoker LISA chooses Jamaica of all places - not knowing anything about the Island's homophobic and even racists culture.

LISA takes a deep dive into the dance-hall scene, decides that she prefers women, and starts various affairs. Her self-confidence get a big boost when she befriends a motorcycle gang who teach her to ride and accept that strange skinny girl from Germany, who seems to be weirder and even more of an outcast than they themselves.

Trying to survive Lisa has to stand her ground more often than she likes - but in the process she learns more about herself than ever before. She grows and changes into a whole new person.

But that's not it... things reach new levels and escalate. MARY, one of LISA's local short-term affairs comes back from a semester in the US. Very unexpectedly she's married to a naive Italo-American macho and confesses to LISA that she's the real love of her life and that she only wants her husbands money to become LISA's sugarmama - forever...
